Lord of the Fries

A LETTER FROM THE FRANCHISORS

OUR COMPANY

“THEY WANTED FRESH POTATOES, THICK BUT NOT TOO THICK, CRISPY BUT NOT TOO CRUNCHY, DELICIOUS AND SAUCY, THE MISSION BEGAN.”

The idea behind Lord of the Fries began over late night snack excursions early in 2004 where founders, Mark and Mandy, met while living in Taiwan. Their love of fries drew them closer, while their conscience to help build a better world led them to look for alternative solutions to the chemical and beef-tallow-laden options on the market.

They wanted fresh potatoes, thick but not too thick, crispy but not too crunchy, delicious and saucy, the mission began.

It was the beginning of a fast food revolution.

Landing in Melbourne in August 2004, they decided to take ‘the best fries you will ever try’ to the people! What better way than a mobile chip van - now all they needed was a name.

This is where Sam Koronczyk (Mark’s brother) comes sizzling into the story. Being a creative wiz, he crowned the venture LORD OF THE FRIES.

The Lord was born.

The van was on the road by October and they were travelling around the country serving up golden crunchy fries in a cone, with home-made sauces, all inspired by flavours found across the globe. The people rejoiced!

Finally a fry that was:

- NOT drowned in beef tallow and juiced up with gluten
- NOT cooked in the cheapest oil money can buy;
- NOT smothered in watered down tomato sauce that had been sitting in a bain-marie since the beginning of time.

Late 2005, they acquired a permanent locale – in the heart of Melbourne at the iconic Flinders Street Station where they added burgers to the menu to compliment the large saucy coned fries.

Now you can decide for yourself, are they the best fries you’ve ever tried?
